

POLYONE CORPORATION SUPPLIER CODE OF CONDUCT

To ensure a mutually beneficial and productive relationship, PolyOne asks all suppliers to adhere to our safety procedures and security policies within manufacturing plants; distribution centers; sales; regional; or corporate offices.

Further, we expect our suppliers will:

- ✓ Conduct all commercial negotiations in a responsible, ethical and lawful manner.
- ✓ Treat all transactions and dealings with PolyOne as confidential and proprietary. Outside communications about PolyOne require prior written consent.
- ✓ Provide value-added services by sharing engineering, technical and product information with PolyOne associates for the purpose of making process and productivity improvements; developing project scopes and equipment specifications; and demonstrating best business practices.
- ✓ Inform PolyOne of financial, economic, supply changes, government regulations or other material conditions that could affect ongoing operations or operating decisions.
- ✓ Provide all proposals in writing and direct a copy of business correspondence to the appropriate sourcing and procurement professionals.
- ✓ Refrain from offering PolyOne employees money, loans, credits, prejudicial discounts, gifts, products or services for their personal use or benefit. Meals and entertainment for the purposes of developing business relationships must be within reasonable, customary, and lawful business practices in the country or industry. Suppliers are expected to comply with all applicable import and export controls, as well as all trade compliance and antitrust laws.
- ✓ Avoid conflicts of interests that involve business dealings with family members and close personal friends at PolyOne.